DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

In view of Applicant's After Final arguments filed 2/12/2007, the examiner notes that in view of how Applicant is interpreting the claim limitations in question (Alexander does not record an interactive advertisement during the presentation of the interactive advertisement) an inconsistency has been raised in regards to the teachings of the specification of the instant application (which are consistent with how the examiner interpreted the claim limitations). The examiner has interpreted the claimed limitations consistently with the specification of the instant application, which teaches in Figure 4 and Pages 12-14 that the interactive advertisement is only recorded if the interactive advertisement is currently not presently playing and if the interactive advertisement is currently playing, the channel is tuned to the channel playing the interactive advertisement (not recorded), therefore the claim could never be supported by the specification where an interactive advertisement is recorded while it is currently playing. The examiner notes that since the way the claim is written, that the teachings of the specification of the instant application, as well as Alexander (whom teaches the method taught in Figure 4 of Applicant's specification) do not support the claim limitations, based on how Applicant is interpreting the claim limitations. The examiner did not realize this because the examiner was interpreting the claim limitations in light of the teachings of Applicant's specification. Therefore, the examiner will issue a 112 1st paragraph rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 16-32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

The examiner notes Figure 4 and Pages 12-14 where the interactive advertisement is only recorded if the interactive advertisement is currently not presently playing and if the interactive advertisement is currently playing, the channel is tuned to the channel playing the interactive advertisement (not recorded), therefore the claim could never be supported by the specification where an interactive advertisement is recorded while it is currently playing.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
